

The Origin of the Greek Alphabet: A New Perspective

Contents

Preface	page	3
Abstract		8
Main Text
1 The role of Phoenician writing in the creation of the Greek alphabet		9
2 Controversy over the nature of Phoenician signs		11
3 Phoenician signs seen from the Phoenicians' perspective		12
4 The nature of a Phoenician sign		14
5 Pre-phonemic vs phonemic interpretations of a Phoenician syllable		20
6 The reason why a Phoenician sign has multiple sound values		21
7 The nature of ancient Egyptian writing		22
8 Writing foreign names in ancient Egyptian		33
9 The first Semitic alphabetic script and some of its descendants		37
10 Did the Phoenicians use matres ?		47
11 The Phoenician way to write a Greek name		52
12 From the Phoenician way of writing Greek names to the Greek way of writing the Greek language		75
13 The creation of new vowel letters in early Greek alphabetic writing		100
14 The creation of new consonant letters in early Greek alphabetic writing		107
15 Concluding remarks		117
References		121
Appendix 1 The monoconsonantal signs in the Egyptian hieroglyphic script		124
Appendix 2 A chart comparing four Semitic alphabetic scripts		125
Appendix 3 Proto-Semitic consonant chart		127
Appendix 4 Ugaritic consonant chart		128
Appendix 5 Phoenician consonant chart		129
Appendix 6 Modern Hebrew consonant chart		130
Appendix 7 Modern Arabic consonant chart		131
Appendix 8 Archaic Greek consonant chart		132
Appendix 9 Frequencies of vowel letters in archaic Greek inscriptions		133

Map 1 Ancient Egypt and Phoenicia

137

Map 2 Ancient Greece

138